REVOLT AGAINST GOVT.

French Coalition In Danger

Paris, June 25. The revolt against the coalition Government of M. Paul Ramadier grew both in the French Parliament and in the country today as strikes spread, although' the Upper House passed the unpopular "Austerity Bill" by 140 votes to 103.

The lower House accepted the bill yesterday and the Finance Commission of the Upper House passed it last night.

The Premier was on his feet again today to defend the policy of M. Robert Schuman, his Finance Minister, before the Upper House.

"Our proposals have only one aim -to combat inflation," he said. He won his point with somewhat grudging acquiescence by both Houses in the "save the franc" pro-

M. Ramadler's own party, the Socialists, were dissatisfied with what they considered the Premier's lukewarm attitude about state control of industry. The Radicals, who have five Ministers in the coalition Cabinet, seemed determined to oppose the extension of state control, and abstained from supporting the Government.

The survival of the coalition uncertain. The Communist Party innual congress which opened in Strasbourg today, is expected press for, the return of the Communists to power. They from the largest single party in the French Parliament, put dropped out of the Government at the beginning of last

Cuts Child's Tongue

New York, June 25. Mrs Agnes Smith a nearby Ross Mills today admitted cutting the tongue h of a seven-year-old boarder with a knife in order to a force him to "tell" the truth," police said.

The woman, who pleaded guilty to a third degree assault charge, confessed to grasping the tongue of Richard Griffin with a pair of pliers and cutting a halfinch tear in the lining beneath the tongue.

Mrs Smith's son was accused of the theft of some pencils from the Ross Mills school. The Griffin boy said Mrs Smith forced him to admit the theft.

Richard was one of four children left in the woman's care while their parents were house-hunting .--United Press.

THERE are at least three rea-I sons why Hongkong industrialists look askance at the prospect of Japan once again entering the competitive market. In order of importance they can be ranked; cheaper overheads; superior machinery; willingness to take less profit. Masking these three standard distinctions (which were just as evident pre-war as they are today) is the dominant factor of American dollars being poured into Japan for her resuscitation. United States "Big Business" has been heavily investing capital in Japan; some dime or another there will be a demand for dividends, and Japan's industries and other commercial interests will have to provide them. SCAP, eventually, will disclose itself, not as an abbreviation for Supreme Commander, Alled Forces in the Pacific, but as a cover for substantial American dollar investments upon which a return will duly be required. This is the most serious competition Hongkong textile and other.

manufacturers are facing, and, its recognition understandably puts them in the doldmins. One con-

The Challenge clusion has to be drawn: that flongkong's industries. If they are to survive, must both modernise and rationalise. Hand looms are an anachronism and a wasteful use of manpower; spindles that cannot convert raw cotton into yarn as fast as in Japan should be scrapped. The only effective answer to Japan's escaped unmolested. textile challenge is for Hongkong manufacturers to produce as much yarn and cloth, in as short a time. and at slightly cheaper prices. This will require a complete overhaul of the present antiquated factories now struggling to exist on both sides of the harbour. Until. and unless our manufacturers are prepared to employ completely up-to-date machinery, making fullest use of the latest technical developments, the markets which once were theirs must pass into other hands. The mercliessness of Japanese competition before the war is not denied, but it was fundamentally the product of modernised production methode and a willingness to be satisfied with a small but working margin of profit. Both will be prime factors in Japan's future commercial and industrial enterprises.

Hit On The Head With Hammer

Four Jewish terrorists attacked Mr Alan Major, Palestine Government Assistant Liaison Officer to the United Nations Special Committee on Palestine, as he entered his flat at lunchtime here today. The attackers hit him on the head with a hammer and tried to chloroform him, presumably to kidnap him. His Jewish wife raised the alarm and shouted to a passing lorry. The attackers opened fire, hit the British Army driver in the arm, and then escaped.

Mr. Major was tonight recovering at home and the army driver was in hospital. A Palestine investigation court found no evidence that Major Roy Farran had assistance in his escape from the Allenby barracks, it was officially stated here today. The major was detained in connection with the disappearance of Alexander Rubowitz, 17 year old Jewish youth, since stated to be dead. It was understood that he had been eaught posting a Stern gang leaflet but was not taken to a police station and no trace of him has since been found.

Hot Debate Over Sex Education

Paris, June 25. Catholic and Protestant countries today hotly disputed the question of sex education.

Cyril Bibby, unofficial chief of the British delegation to the World Congress For Population and Family, began the argument when he declar-"Children should know all the seven years old."

Speaking before the Commission on parent-child relationship, Bibby said: "In my opinion, children should learn the proper names for their organs and know their function by the age of two or three.

"At the age of six, children should be told by their parents or in classes about the birth of a baby and should know that a baby is brought to maturity in the womb.

"By the time they are seven years old, children will have asked the time-honoured question-where did I come from?—and they should be told without embarrassment about the role of the father."

At this point, Bibby was cut off by the chairman of the Commission and Father Violet, French delegate, took the stand. "I disagree with Mr Bibby complotely," the greybourded priest said. 'We must tell children first that they have a heart which is meant to love and then tell them;

SIAM-F.I.C. BORDER

Washington, June 25. Authoritative sources said today that the International Commission of Conciliation empowered to review the boundary between Siam and French Indo-China has decided to recommend a settlement same as the one. that those two countries recently agreed upon without substantial change.

That agreement in the main provided that the territories which Japan transferred during the war to Siam should be returned to Indo-China.

The Conciliation Commission, composed of members from the United States, Britain, Peru, France and Siam, was appointed, however, to review the geographical, ethnical and economic situations and make recommendations. Authorities" associated with the
